PALLAS Ownership ≠ Timeshare

Unlike other shared-use systems, such as timesharing, which often result in exorbitant management fees and failed investments, PALLAS has an entirely different approach, namely fractional ownership. PALLAS offers its owners the opportunity to become an actual (partial) owner of their own "home away from home."

At Pallas, we select high-scale properties and invite a small group of like-minded individuals (a maximum of 12) to become joint property owners. Each ownership grants the co-owner 1/12 ownership of the relevant PALLAS Property and the right to use the property for one month a year. During a co-owners "month," they are free to use the property themselves, let friends or family use it, or even rent it out to third parties to generate a return on investment should they not wish to use it themselves. Additionally, co-owners benefit from increased property value because their ownership gives them ownership rights.
